SEATTLE'S LGBTQIA+ NEWS & ENTERTAINMENT WEEKLY SINCE 1974

GAY NEWS ROCKS!!

The title 'GAY NEWS ROCKS!!' is rendered in large, bold, yellow, 3D block letters with black outlines and horizontal hatching. To the left of the letters, a person with spiky blonde hair and star-shaped eyes is shown. Below them, a person with large eyes and a 'gasp!' speech bubble is depicted. A small person is taking a selfie with a smartphone in front of the 'R' in 'ROCKS'. To the right of the title, a group of green gnomes in white hats and red scarves are gathered around a trash can.

Letter from the Editor

Dear Reader,

I was having a smoke outside the SGN office the other day.

It's a terrible habit, I know, but it gives me space to think.

Sitting there, blowing smoke out of my nose, I watched as one of our neighbors took the time to trim and water the roses growing in a nearby roundabout — a task she did with great care that gray morning, a task we both knew she didn't have to do.

One person went out of their way to tend to something that brightened their community. It's a small act of kindness that will likely go unnoticed by most, but one that would be missed by the whole neighborhood if it stopped.

I often compare working at the SGN to working in a garden, and I often think about the newspaper's effect on the Queer ecosystem around it.

Over the last few years, our team has worked hard to revive this paper because we feel it is our duty to carry on a 49-year legacy of archiving and enriching a unique, vibrant, flourishing community. It's a labor of love and an act of kindness, and every issue we produce is an act of protest.

In a world where our identities, rights, orientations, and personhood are up for debate and under attack by legislators and fanatics, it is my sincerest hope that this garden continues to be a place our neighbors can keep coming back to — roses, thorns, weeds, and all.

We are forever grateful for the support our readers give us, and we hope to continue to learn and grow right alongside you for as long as possible.

Pride is power. Gay news rocks. Keep doing small acts of kindness. There's a lot of bad news out there, but the good news is that we're here and we're in this together.

A.V. Eichenbaum
SGN Editor-in-Chief

Meet the SGN

Journalists

Lindsey Anderson
Staff Writer

Lindsey Anderson is a writer and podcaster who crawled from the depths of Spokane. She is also a local standup comedian who can be seen regularly at the Comedy Nest and in Club Comedy's Pride Showcase. She is the proud pet parent of three boys: Peter (10), Oliver (2), and Benji (9 months). She does not maintain a daily meditation and yoga practice. You can also find her work in Tagg Magazine and hidden somewhere in a box in her mother's basement. Her dog Peter is a drag queen.

Mike Andrew
Staff Writer

Mike Andrew has written for the SGN since 2001. Prior to that, he was a fish monger. He is capable of breaking down a salmon in 90 seconds and then turning around and writing a story about it. He is a member of the National Writers Union and Pride At Work, an LGBTQ labor organization affiliated with the AFL-CIO. He typically covers politics and labor news, but he can't resist a story about bishops behaving like idiots. Mike was born in San Francisco, went to UC Berkeley, and then came to Seattle for grad school. The turning point in his life came when he looked at his professors and asked himself, "Do I want to spend the rest of my life going to cocktail parties with these people?" That's when he became a fish monger. Mike has managed two political campaigns: one win and one loss. He's proudest of the loss, however, because his candidate spent only 60 cents per vote and still came in at 46%. The rest of his story can be summarized like this: boy meets boy, boy breaks up with boy, boy meets better boy, they adopt a cat, and they live happily ever after.

Alice Bloch

Contributing Writer

Alice Bloch, contributing arts and entertainment writer at SGN, is author of the memoirs Mother-Daughter Banquet (Minerva Rising Press) and Lifetime Guarantee (Persephone Press) and the novel The Law of Return (Alyson Publications). She coordinates the Meals on Wheels program on Vashon Island, where she lives with her spouse and their two dogs.

Otts Bolisay

Comics Artist

Chickenhead is mildly autobiographical and is Otts' first serialized comic strip. It began appearing in SGN January 2022. Without realizing it, Otts infused parts of his Bahamian identity into the limited color palette: aqua, yellow, and black, the colors in the flag of the Bahamas, are also colors of Chickenhead's main character. Most of the characters in the comic strip are named after Otts' Bahamian classmates, including his high school crush. And there's a certain Bahamian sensibility, mixed with some Filipino foolishness, in the comic strip's world of horny gay animals. Catch up on all of Chickenhead on SGN's website or on Otts' Instagram: @ottsatwork.

Sharon Cumberland

Contributing Writer

Sharon Cumberland is professor emerita at Seattle University where she taught English and creative writing, and directed the creative writing program. Her poetry collections are Peculiar Honors and Strange with Age (Black Heron Press) and Found in a Letter: 1959 (Ex Ophidia Press). Her poems have appeared in Ploughshares, The Iowa Review, Verse, and Image among many other collections and journals. She has had arts residencies at Yaddo and the Jack Straw Foundation, and was poet in residence at the Seasons Music Festival in Yakima. She founded the Greenwood Poets, a weekly critiquing group. She has been writing arts reviews for the Seattle Gay News since 2014, covering ballet, opera, dance, poetry, and special events such as arts interviews and the Womxn's March. She is a fully committed friend, ally, and supporter of LGBTQ rights everywhere.

Jack Hilovsky

Contributing Writer

Jack Hilovsky is an author, actor, and blogger who has made his home in Seattle since 1986. His first book, RJ, Farrah and Me: A Young Man's Gay Odyssey from the Inside Out, was published in June 2022. It can be found at Elliott Bay Book Co., Madison Books, Nook & Cranny, and University Bookstore, among other local booksellers. He has written for the Capitol Hill Times and 'mo magazine. In his spare time Jack is active on a Masters LGBTQ+ swim team, sings with the Seattle Men's Chorus, and maintains a daily yoga and meditation practice. He is grateful for the opportunity to write a monthly column for the Seattle Gay News sharing his insights on the personal and the uplifting.

Sara Michelle Fetters

Staff Writer

Sara Michelle Fetters has been writing about film since she was 16, working for the Spokesman-Review as a film critic for the paper's "teen section" before heading off to college at the University of Washington. She became the lead film critic for Moviefreak.com in 2001 and began contributing to the Seattle Gay News in 2006. In 2020, Sara Michelle was elevated to "to critic" status at Rotten Tomatoes by a distinguished panel of her peers. She is a former Imperial Princess of the Imperial Sovereign Court of Seattle and has been competing for championships on various teams in the Emerald City Softball Association since 2001, in which she was named to the Seattle Hall of Fame in 2014.

Daniel Lindsley

Staff Writer

A storyteller at heart and an enthusiast to the bone, Daniel has covered town hall events, Los Angeles museums, Queer-owned businesses, and a good bit of what's in between. Yet his truest calling is the geek beat, where he uses a lifelong passion and curiosity for games and other playable media to lead readers on journeys through pop culture niches. Whether it's Dungeons & Dragons, Final Fantasy XIV, or Amtgard, he's more than ready to dive in.

Readers are likely to spot him in one of his two natural states of being: in a convention center looking lost, or wearing his cloak on a brisk evening's walk.

Benny Loy

Contributing Writer

Benny Loy, born and raised in the Pacific Northwest, is an author and freelance journalist. If they aren't in a cuddle puddle with their many dogs, they are working with adults with disabilities or spending time with their wife-to-be. Their fiction writing is inspired by a childhood brimming with tall tales their father shared while trekking through the Washington forests and the Oregon desert. Benny feels that writing for SGN has allowed them to learn about and grow closer to the community.

Cameron Martinez
Intern

Cameron Martinez is a visual journalist who combines creative storytelling and social awareness, using their degree in visual journalism and minor in queer studies from Western Washington University. They excel in video editing, enjoy pinball, and have a passion for Korean fried chicken. Cameron's work reflects their dedication to inclusivity, precision, and the celebration of diverse narratives.

Isabel Mata
Advice Columnist

Isabel is a 27-year-old writer and storyteller from upstate New York. Her work has been published in over 50 publications worldwide, with features and bylines in Cosmopolitan, Marie Claire, Elle, Nylon, and more on the topics of mental health, wellness, and love. She is the host of the mental health podcast Being Yourself Loudly and writes a weekly advice column called "Ask Izzy" for the Seattle Gay News.

Lauren Vasatka
Photographer

Lauren Vasatka, born in Texas, spent her childhood jumping around the country because of her father's work. She experienced Arizona's glaring heat, California's beaches, and Minnesota's snowy hills before finally settling down in Washington. As in her early life of transplanting, she is always on the move. Outside of her work as a highly recommended plumber, she loves to pack up her dogs and her future wife to go camping and road-tripping. Lauren enjoys biking, bouldering, off-roading in her Jeep, cooking Asian cuisine, and baking bread. Photography has been her medium since she was 12; her favorite subjects are nature and pets. Working with SGN has allowed her to combine her Energizer Bunny attitude, her passion for forever capturing the moment, and engagement with the community.

Production

Angela Cragin
Owner/Publisher

Angela Cragin has been involved as publisher of the Seattle Gay News since June 2020. Her father, the late George Bakan, was its owner, editor-in-chief, and publisher for over 37 years. She has worked tirelessly for the past three years to carry on his legacy. As a champion for independent journalism, she has increased efficiency in operations, curated original content, supported young professionals, and merged generations under this new chapter of SGN. She aspires to bring this unique publication into the future to continue serving the LGBTQ+ community that resides in the Emerald City.

A.V. Eichenbaum
Editor-in-Chief

A.V. Eichenbaum began their career in journalism at The Gavilan Press in 2009. Since then, the 28-year-old has held an impossible number of odd jobs and their work has appeared in several publications, including Seattle Pride Magazine and the Pulitzer Prize-winning Pajaronian. They've acted as SGN's editor-in-chief and "Swiss Army Queer" since 2021. Eichenbaum has proudly worn hats as reporter, website editor, graphic artist and designer, intern coordinator, social media manager, podcast host, event planner, merch salesperson, data analyst, audio editor, videographer, delivery manager, and more during their tenure at the Seattle Gay News. They are constantly in the midst of other creative endeavors in whatever spare time they have. Listen to their horror fiction literature on The Ugly Radio, hear them as Cal on The Scrab Archives, or find their band, The Weeping Dreams, wherever you listen to audio media.

Richard Isaac
Copy Editor

Richard Isaac (RichTextEditing.com) is a freelance copy editor with a background in linguistics, foreign languages, and queer activism. He was active in Queer Nation and Bigot Busters (1990–95) and has served in several capacities in the Northwest Editors Guild. Isaac has been editing for SGN since 2015. He has studied ten languages and lived abroad; his other interests include travel, film, and Eurovision, which he has attended twice.

Bruno George
Copy Editor (Reserve)

Bruno George is a writer and freelance editor who lives in Seattle. His short fiction has appeared in Chicago Review, Conjunctions, the Denver Review, and other publications (sometimes under his dead name), and he wrote for The Stranger in what will one day be known as its golden age. His PhD dissertation was on the French novelist Antoine Volodine, and now he is at work on a novel. He runs a memoir-writing service, Writing-Your-Life.com.

STARBUCKS DOESN'T WANT YOU TO SEE THIS AD:

WORKERS' RIGHTS ARE TRANS & QUEER RIGHTS

A union contract is one of the strongest ways for LGBTQIA2+ workers to protect their rights and ensure equity and inclusivity at work – especially as some states actively pass drastic legislation to deny and restrict our humanity.

We are proud to fight alongside Starbucks Workers United and all workers seeking to organize and form unions.

STARBUCKS:

You can't say you're pro-queer and be anti-union! It's time to stop union-busting. Respect workers' rights!

Brunch: the time between breakfast and lunch when the mimosas are flowing and, if you're lucky, the drag performers appear. This Pride Month, there are several drag brunches to choose from, so the SGN is here to help you narrow down your options.

For kids

In front of the iconic Pike Place Market sign, there's an all-ages show in the Rabbit Box, a small but cozy cocktail bar with a stage. "Donuts & Drag" is a free weekly performance hosted by Sativa the Queen, but she goes by Stevia when the kids are around. The show only includes a few performers, but that gives the chance for each to do three numbers.

The Rabbit Box boasts 4.8 stars on Google Maps and is known for its homemade beignets served with jam.

For the taco lovers way north of Seattle

Those who find themselves in Bellingham on June 17 should go to "Meet Me at Brunch" at Black Sheep. This 21+ show is hosted by local drag queen and P!nk mega fan Alecia Lily, and is known for its provocative dances and for having a roaring crowd. Since the venue is two stories, performers are able to make dramatic appearances downstairs and have close interactions with everyone in the audience. Entry is $10.

In addition, the food at Black Sheep is great. This 4.6-star restaurant serves a variety of Mexican dishes and drinks, with the most famous items being the tacos and the margaritas.

For the musical lover

"Mimosas Cabaret," the self-proclaimed #1 drag brunch in Seattle, puts on two shows every weekend at Unicorn, a carnival-themed 21+ bar with 4.4 stars on Google Maps, with tickets costing $30–$50. The performance is accompanied by a $13 all-you-can-eat brunch buffet.

According to the ticketing website, "Mimosas Cabaret has received international acclaim for our mini musical productions, where we reimagine some of Broadway's biggest musical hits into a wild drag retelling. Our past productions include '30 Minute Hairspray,' 'The Wicked Wiz of Oz,' 'Reefer Dragness,' 'Cinderella,' 'Hung Frankenstein,' 'Illegally Blonde,' and many more." This season's theme is "Sistah Act," a drag-fueled remake of the film and musical Sister Act.

For those who need to recover from Everett Pride's first block party

People over the age of 21 who may or may not be a little hungover from Everett Pride's block party the day before are welcome to attend Illusions Drag Brunch, hosted by Alexis Montoya, on June 18 at 11 a.m. at the Hotel Indigo.

The $50 admission comes with a buffet-style brunch and a chance to cure your hangover with mimosas. This waterfront venue has a 4.4-star rating on Google Maps.

For fans of Dungeons & Dragons

If you want a side of nerdy tabletop gaming with your eggs, you should check out "A Brunch of Adventure," hosted by the Dungeons and Drag Queens.

The ticketing site says guests will be treated to "three of the queerest Queens in the realm [playing] the table-top roleplaying game sensation Dungeons & Dragons in front of a live audience! With comedian Paul Curry as dungeon master and live improvisational musician Carson Grubb jamming along, this is sure to be an adventure for newbies and DnD nerds alike!"

This 21+ comedy extravaganza will be held on June 18 at Nate Jackson's Super Funny Comedy Club in Tacoma. Tickets range from $20 to $125. The venue has a 4.7-star rating on Google Maps.

For those who love to gamble

If you enjoy a game of cards or some fun at the slot machines between eating your brunch and watching drag shows, you should go see "The Royal Flush: Queens Are Wild" drag brunch at the Great American Casino in Tukwila on June 18 and 25. It is hosted by Seattle drag performers Irene the Alien and Queen Andrew Scott. Tickets for this 21+ show range from $10 to $300.

The venue holds a 3.6-star rating on Google Maps.

For those who can't stop saying things are "camp"

Those who like to be seated in nice restaurants while watching shows should check out "A Very Kamy Drag Brunch" at Kamp Social House every second and fourth Sunday of the month, hosted by Jane Don't.

According to the ticketing site, "Brunch with a table-side show is what you can expect...with performances by Kamp's resident Queen MyAikó and a rotating third performer. DJ BB Brizz makes it bump all morning long. Come hungry, bring your singles (friends and $), and prepare for a great time."

The venue of this 21+ brunch has a 4.7-star rating on Google Maps.

Liquid Pride: Queer spaces to drink around town

BY BENNY LOY
SGN CONTRIBUTING WRITER

It's time to be proud this month, but if you need a little liquid courage to get out there, you can discover LGBTQIA+ bars aplenty around town. Capitol Hill is stuffed to the gills with Gay bars, but you may also be surprised to find a few sprinkled in other neighborhoods (and one further away).

This is a list of some local watering holes that can satiate your need for a morning mimosa or a late-night beer.

The Wildrose, Capitol Hill

If you've spent time on the Hill, you probably know the Wildrose. However, it's important to understand the significance of this establishment. Founded in 1985 by Shelley Brothers and Martha Manning, it is the only dedicated Lesbian bar in Seattle and one of only 23 in the country. So the Wildrose is a point of pride for local Sapphics. The venue features a small dance floor for live music and is well known for its block parties.

www.thewildrosebar.com

The Seattle Eagle, Capitol Hill

Like the Wildrose, this leather bar has been around for quite some time. Established in 1981, it is one of the longest-surviving Gay bars in Seattle, and is now owned by Keith Christensen. It hosts regular kink-themed events, like the infamous Make Out Party. You can add this haunt, with its shadowy chain-link fence aesthetic and catwalk, to your list of stops if you're interested in the leatherscene. www.seattleeagle.com

Queen Anne Beerhall, Queen Anne

This beer hall may not be advertised as a Gay bar, but it is Queer owned. Gary Szeredy took over in 2020 and revamped the Czech Republic-inspired business. The 24 taps that used to feature only European beers now include local brews. The venue is also celebrating Pride with special events and performances throughout the month. So check out Queen Anne Beerhall if you want to relax, drink a beer, and eat soft pretzels. Your canine companions are also welcome. www.queenannebeerhall.com

Union, Capitol Hill

This bar and nightclub was started in 2018 and “proudly serves the LGBTQ+ allied community.” With plenty of food and spirits, Union’s airy bar and patio is a fantastic summer hangout. On “Team Tuesday,” every $1 spent on a Tito’s beverage is donated to local LGBTQIA+ nonprofit organizations. Attend the Pride block party June 23–25 to dance the night away.

www.unionseattle.com

Rough and Tumble Pub, Ballard

Opened in 2022, this woman’s sports bar in the historic Henry White Sawmill building is one of a kind. Jen Barnes came up with the idea when she couldn’t find a place to watch the 2021 OL Reign soccer team’s semifinal playoff game.

Get a drink and a bite to eat while choosing one of the 18 screens on which to watch sports. As the website says, “Whether you are looking for a new game-day tradition, alumni event, after-practice dinner with the family, or overtime catchup, we invite all fans of all ages to join us to watch ALL the sports.”

<https://www.roughandtumblepub.com>

The Bottleneck Lounge, Capitol Hill

This cozy bar “on the backside of Capitol Hill” strives to be “the best little neighborhood bar in Seattle.” Regulars know this laid-back spot as the place to get their cocktail fix and barside conversation. The lounge doesn’t advertise itself as a Gay bar, but it is Queer owned and welcoming to all. Most of the award-winning beers and ciders are made locally, as are the distilled spirits.

www.bottlenecklounge.com

Diesel, Capitol Hill

Calling all “bears, bikers, buddies, bubbas, blue collars, and badasses”! Diesel was opened in 2011 by Mike Reis and Mark Hurst as Seattle’s premier bear bar. One doesn’t need to be a motorhead to appreciate their trucker aesthetic and car-themed menu items, like the Mozzarella Stick-Shift sticks. Diesel has a loyal clientele from the local Bear community while being inclusive and welcoming to those who may not be of the large and hairy variety.

Footprint Wine Tap, Capitol Hill

The first and only sustainable keg wine-on-tap bar, Footprint, is Queer owned, by Ken Dillon. The business focuses on reducing its carbon footprint (thus the name) while showcasing Pacific Northwest wines, which can be paired with a gorgeous charcuterie board and housemade crostini. The design, with its modern natural hardwood aesthetic, is incredibly pleasing. Listen to live piano while pouring a merlot from one of the many pristine, glistening taps. The venue can host private events for up to 50 people.

www.footprintwine.com

Dragster, Fremont

Owners Auszie Oxford and James Wiemann started Dragster "with the idea of cultivating community in mind." This fresh Gay bar opened last year and offers a new addition to Seattle's nightlife. The welcoming ambiance is combined with a glam decor of neon signs and fire pits. It offers food, drinks, dancing, pool tables, and live events, such as drag shows. The building was formerly the Fremont Ballroom and is now the neighborhood's only bar for the Queer community. Come in for a Slutty Smurf cocktail and stay for the good vibes.

www.dragstersseattle.com

The Lumber Yard Bar, White Center

Michale Farrar and Nathan Adams often held large gatherings and entertained in their home. The Lumber Yard, the first Queer bar in White Center, offers an experience that calls back to the pair's love for hosting. "We both have a background in retail, love to cook, appreciate a good cocktail or a glass of wine, and felt that this was our next logical step," they state on their website. The lumberjack decor is rustic yet modern and makes for an excellent backdrop for live events. The bar offers karaoke, dancing, trivia nights, kink nights, and drag shows.

Ashley's Pub, Bremerton

This business started by Ashley Martinez is outside of King County but deserves to be mentioned. Like the Bottleneck Lounge, it is Queer owned. The venue is a geek's dream. The walls are lined with board games, and the bar is stocked with microbrews, ciders, wines, and even mead. It offers wraps, sandwiches, and pizza, but you are welcome to bring food to feed your party. There is plenty of space to run your weekly tabletop RPG campaign, or you can sip away while playing a single-player game. At Ashley's Pub, "gamers of all classes, races, and most alignments are welcome."

www.ashleys.pub

The Cuff Complex, Capitol Hill

Looking for a leather bar with a friendly, just-seedy-enough vibe? The Cuff is it. An eclectic mix of bar and performance space, this puppy-play friendly kink bar throws one hell of a party. Their Taco Tuesdays are kickass, but word around the SGN office is that their chicken tinga is to die for.

www.cuffcomplex.com

CC Attle's, Capitol Hill

Sleek, sexy, and classic, CC's is another staple on the Hill. Darts, a relaxing atmosphere, and an underwear night where you can "let it all hang out" every third Saturday — this bar and lounge are perfect for nights when you want to have fun without getting too crazy. The staff is friendly and the patio's a plus! It tends to draw a millennial-and-older crowd, but there's never a cover, so we think everyone should give it a try.

www.ccsseattle.com

Changes, Wallingford

The closest thing to Cheers Seattle's gay community is going to get, Changes is a great place to go for a warm, welcoming, unpretentious drinking experience. They're celebrating 34 years in business as Wallingford's watering hole. The burgers are pretty great and of course there's karaoke! You can find them on Instagram

@changesinwallingford

Pony, Capitol Hill

If a dive bar is more your style, Pony is the spot to go to. They're located in what used to be a gas station, they've got a fire pit, their DJ lineup is immaculate, and the vibes are as pristine as the location is gritty. Come for the music, stay for the go-go boys and karaoke. The place gets packed. They're not lying when they say they're the most popular Gay dive in town.

www.ponyseattle.com

Queer/Bar, Capitol Hill

In 2017, Joey Burgess founded the bar that loudly proclaims in its simple yet sleek font, "Queer/Bar." The name choice was part welcome mat to LGBTQIA+ members and allies, part warning sign to those who might intrude on this safe space. They offer drag performances, RuPaul's Drag Race viewings, and a private lounge on the bar's second floor. During their Queer Pride Fest June 23 to 25, they'll have many performers, including Trixie Mattel.

www.thequeerbar.com

Whatever your tastes, the greater Seattle area has a lot to offer. These locations can quench your thirst for beer, wine, and even mead while providing an inclusive atmosphere. With plenty of events and experiences to offer this Pride, and all year round, you can find one you'll love.
